DiscussIT Topic 6: Where is our country headed?

Discuss IT Topic: Over the last week, our country has had growing concerns on immigration bans, border safety, and executive orders that remind us of issues that have been plaguing our country for years. Now that Trump has been elected President, there has been people threatening to blow up the White House, human right protests, and a plethora of other sensitive subject matters that are very compelling to individual groups of people. Why have these issues come up now as we head into a time in which it seems no one is going to be happy with the outcomes? Will this create a split in this country and place citizens against one another when it comes to their views? In your opinion, what other topics are at the forefront of concern? Exaplin.

Response: Please make sure all grammar, spelling, indentation, and punctuation is correct.

Over the past week with the inauguration of President Trump, there have been many threats to the White House, human right protests, and other huge problems. Personally, I think many individual groups of people are angry because Donald Trump is presented in the media as an ignorant and xenophobic man with an interest in stopping certain cultures from entering the United States as well as many other controversies. Additionally, it seems that the millennial generation is more sensitive to certain topics and get butt hurt if someone doesn't share their opinion. I believe that this will divide our country in half because of the different opinions on the president and his views. In addition, there are other topics that has the country divided besides immigration bans such as the defunding of Planned Parenthood, the fear of Trump revoking same sex marriage, the Black Lives Matter movement, and his negligence towards climate change. Liberals and Conservative Americans will end up going at each other like they have in the last few months.
